

Braving Red Waters

A Time-Travel Adventure

Phoebe Bristow has spent a decade guarding her heart after her father walked out and shattered her family. When she touches a mysterious antique mailbox aboard a whale-watching cruise in Baja California and wakes up in Civil War St. Louis, she must learn to trust again, first the quick-witted man who greets her on shore, then the God who placed her there for reasons she cannot yet understand.

READER REVIEWS

"Braving Red Waters is an inspiring mix of romance, adventure, and faith. Full of courage, love, and God's calling, it kept me hooked from beginning to end. A wonderful, faith-filled read!"
Surfemme

"This book was such a fun read! Found myself reading longer than planned to get through one more chapter, only to crave the next chapters story too. The characters were sweet and the double love story was awesome!"

About Sarah

Sarah Hanks is a multi-award-winning author of split-time Christian fiction. She and her husband have ten children, a couple of whom seem to have inherited their mother's love for playing with words and crafting stories. Though Sarah dreams of a cabin by the beach, the family lives jammed together in beautiful chaos near St. Louis, Missouri. She buys earplugs in bulk.
